

Abstract of Disclosure

A method of gain control in a fiberoptic repeating system is disclosed. By the present invention, the signal levels of an optical cable can be frequently monitored without affecting the control operations of the base station. Thus, damped signal 5 levels can effectively be compensated.